As was to have been expected, the As was to have been expected, the advance in assessments has caused a storm of protests. It was the idea of the members of the Tax Department who were responsible for the new method of valuing that no protest would be heard, for, with the assessments based on sworn statements, they did not believe the companies would have a lear to stand on in making their proleg to stand on in making their pro-tests. According to latest reports, how-ever, it seems that the companies have justified their statements to the State authorities and at the same time have demonstrated to the Tax Department that the old valuations were the proper

Their statement in every case is that Their statement in every case is that the value represented to the State authorities is based on the value of the property involved to the individual company; that it is not meant to represent market value, being in some cases higher and in others lower than the amounts for which separate properties would sell.
